

CarePartners of Georgia was founded by David Crooke and Kathy Durden in 2003 with the fundamental belief that people can and do recover from mental illness and addictive disease.

The name "CarePartners of Georgia" symbolizes the unique experience of partnering with children, youth and their family members. Services are undertaken in a spirit of partnership and collaboration between individuals served and providers. We engage in the processes of informed and shared decision-making, and facilitate partnerships with all people, community systems, and schools involved in supporting children, youth and families receiving services.
